

ROOTED IN CHRIST

The Christian Home: Children & Parents

Colossians 3:20-21 | John Richardson | 12/27/20

1. As a child, how well did (or do) you do at obeying your parents?
2. As a parent, how well do you (or did you) do at not aggravating your children?
3. How do the words of Colossians 3:1-4 impact or influence the way you live out verses 20-21?
4. What was different in the First Century Roman world for children? How might that impact our understanding of obeying parents?
5. What was different in the First Century Roman world for parents? How might that impact our understanding of not aggravating children?
6. As a child, what assumptions did (or do) you have about your parents that might impact how well you obey them?
7. As a parent, what assumptions do (or did) you have about your children that might impact how well you encourage them?
8. Are there ways that you have disobeyed your parents that still need to be confessed and healed? How will you initiate that conversation this week?
9. Are there ways that you have discouraged your children that still need to be confessed and healed? How will you initiate that conversation this week?
